This focus group addresses the question of how to develop the data competences of researchers, and examines where and how (FAIR) data management principles may be instilled in staff and students.

Application deadline: 4 October 2019

Target group

This event is mainly aimed at university and academic leadership and experts interested in training, skills and competence development related to RDM, the FAIR principles, data science, open science and ancillary areas. Applications are also encouraged from those with other backgrounds, such as representatives of European initiatives, projects or research infrastructures.
